FEI Director Nick Dodds takes on major role in the planning of the London 2012 Festival

Nick Dodds, FEI Director, has taken on a new role at LOCOG working on the London 2012 Festival www.london2012.com/festival. Nick joins Director Ruth Mackenzie and the team to deliver the most extensive cultural festival the UK has ever seen. Taking place all over the UK from the Shetland Islands to St Ives the festival will offer more than 10 million free opportunities to attend over a thousand events and performances from mid- summer's day, the 21st June, to the end of the Paralympics, the 9th September. The twelve week Festival brings together UK wide events like the World Shakespeare Festival, BBC Music Nation and the Big Dance with international commissions from artists such as Tino Sehgal and the Sydney Theatre Company, and an extensive programme of free outdoor events including the Fire Garden at Stonehenge and BT River of Music in the capital.
